SIMON'S NEATLY MANUFAC- TURED ALPHABET.

A Is for Anybody! He's welcome to call
And purchase his raiment at I Simon's Hall.

B Our new fashioned and riveted Button, Which never comes off when once it is put on.

C Is the Crowd of folks coming to deal
Where they know they'll get Clothing both cheap and genteel.

D The Delight which each customer knows,
As he walks in his suit of new elegant clothes.

E For Economy, practised by all Who stately deal at I Simon's Hall.

F A Fat Person, no matter how large,
We'll fit him with Clothing at moderate charge.

G For the Greenbacks which gentlemen bring In summer and winter, and autumn and Spring.

H Is the Hurry with which people all Get their garments cut home from I Simon's Hall.

I The Invitation we give to all men
To come and buy once, and then come buy again.

J For our Jokes, which the people all read,
And of which some appear to be greatly in need.

K Is the Kiss which your good wife bestows, When you come home arrayed in a suit of new clothes.

L Is the Loner, who never at all Comes in to buy clothes at I Simon's Hall.

M Is the Money which customers pay For their clothing; a small amount goes a great way.

N The New Building I Simon will erect
In the spring; something elegant, folks may expect.

O For Our Hall, that popular store,
Where the public buy clothing each day,
more and more.

P For Patched Pants, which nobody need wear
When a trifle will purchase a splendid new pair.

Q For the Queer things, so marvellous queer,
Which in I Simon's great Almanac soon will appear.

R For the Rhymes which flow gently along
In mellifluous, old alphabetical song.

S Is your Sweetheart, who loves to express Her delight at the looks of your elegant dress.

T For Thick Trowsers, which keep you so warm.
In the season of slush, and of snow, and of storm.

U For Umbrella, permit us to say,
We've exactly the thing for a very wet day.

V For fig. vests; our customers use 'em
To protect and adorn the masculine bosom.

W For Wholesalers who trade at our store,
Who have sold a l they bought, and now call for more.

X Expedition with which, with great pleasure
We take each particular customer's measure.

Y The Young man, apparelled so neat,
From the roots of his hair to the sole of his feet.

Z Is the Zeal which our customers feel To wear Simon's clothes from the head to the heel.

Spring clothing of every description at much lower prices than can be had anywhere else, owing to our intention to sell out stock for alterations to our store. If you desire anything in the clothing line, you can be suited at Simon's Hall, No. 211 Broad street.
